ABOUT MÁLAGA

Málaga, capital of the province of the same name, is the fifth most populated city in Spain. It is located in the south of the Iberian Peninsula, in a privileged spot. The city covers 398.25 square kilometres and has a population of almost 568,000 inhabitants, although almost a million people live in the metropolitan area.

The main environmental and geographical factors that have affected the city's evolution and development are maritime influences, its location in two river valleys (the Guadalhorce and the Guadalmedina), its topographic relief and its climate.

Whilst the Mediterranean Sea bathes the Málaga coastline, the Málaga Mountains close ranks behind the city to form a barrier of peaks that protects it from the cold, while the regulating effect of the sea gives the area its characteristically mild temperatures. The hottest months are July and August. December and February are usually the coldest. The average temperatures fall between a maximum of 22.8° C and a minimum of 13° C. Rainfall in Málaga follows the seasons, with the most abundant rainfalls occurring in autumn and winter.

The climate in Málaga is extremely moderate in winter with very mild minimum temperatures. The summers are tempered by the city's proximity to the sea. Rainfall is low with an average of 469.2 mm. The highest rainfall occurs between November and March; the summer is very dry. On average rain falls on 70.9 days.

ARRIVAL IN MALAGA

For visitors arriving at the international airport “Pablo Ruiz Picasso”, there are three ways to get into town:

- A taxi costs around 25 € to get to Málaga city centre, and takes roughly 15 minutes to reach the city.
- There is a bus (line A) into town every 25-30 minutes, one way ticket costs 3.00 €. It takes around 25 minutes.
- The suburban train leaves every 20 minutes from the airport in two directions: Málaga city centre (15 minutes) and Fuengirola with several stops along Costa del Sol (45 minutes). A ticket costs between 1.80-3.60 €.

WHAT TO SEE

MUSEUMS

Málaga has become a true City of Museums. There are 37 museums, most of them concentrated in the historic quarter, making Málaga's old town one of those with the highest density of museums.
